

ANNIE SCHNEIDMAN COLEMAN, CFA

Annie Schneidman Coleman is a vice president and strategic relationship manager at Loomis, Sayles & Company. She is responsible for new sales, business strategy, and relationship management with strategic institutional clients and prospects. Annie joined Loomis Sayles in 2016 as a member of the newly formed strategic relationships team in the institutional services group, focusing on effectively developing and broadening the firm's largest strategic relationships by interfacing with external investment analysts, research specialists and manager selection teams. Previously, she spent five years at Wellington Management as an assistant vice president and relationship analyst in the global financial intermediaries group. Annie is a member of CFA Society Boston. She earned a BA from Williams College.